A couple of years ago, I visited Shimla with my friends. This is the most wonderful trip of my life. The journey to Shimla itself was very adventurous. We passed through serpentine valleys having tremendous views. We stopped at various spots to capture moments. Finally, we reached our dream destination around midday. After taking a rest in our hotel for an hour, we went for sightseeing. Firstly, we visited the very famous Mall Road. There were many old traditional buildings of the British Empire. Tourists from all over the world visit this place. One can easily find various eating joints on this road. We tried delectable desserts offered by these shops before visiting an adjoining wooden market. Few of my friends purchased souvenirs over there. The next day, we noticed few travel agents were offering expeditions to Kufri, which is about 16 km from Shimla. Although it was not on our itinerary, we signed up for a guided tour to Kufri. There we were mesmerized by the beauty of snow covered mountains. Several snow games were also available over there. After spending the whole day in Kufri, we returned to our hotel in the evening.

In earlier times, the joint family system was prevalent. Setup of the society was patriarchal. Male member was the head of the family. His wife, sons, daughters-in-law, and grandchildren used to stay together. However, with a passage of time, joint families disintegrated.

People these days migrate to cities for jobs. So, nuclear families have become the order of the day. Due to escalating prices and less space for accommodation, people find it difficult to accommodate their parents in their houses.

Media is also responsible for the disintegration of the joint families. Media portrays the wrong image of mother-in-law. It also shows tyrannical hold of elders in the family.

Young people crave for independence, privacy and affluence. So, they prefer nuclear family. As a result, grandparents are bereft of the love of their grandchildren. Children are also left rudderless. There is a need that young people should empathize with their old parents.
